Transforming West Africa with the Hope of Christ

Merry Christmas from our new home! Thank you so much for your prayers and to all who donated furniture and kitchen supplies.

This past year has been eventful. We are so grateful for how God has watched over us and blessed us. One key to being a missionary is to be flexible. We never know where God might take us. This year has tested our flexibility:

- Sarah was asked to teach Religious Culture at the school last minute
- We worked hard to finish our house in Guinea Bissau only to turn around and leave just as it was feeling like home
- We planned to go to the US for 3 weeks for a quick family vacation, but found out that Sarah was pregnant so had to make a fast decision on what to do
- God provided a missionary family to stay in our house while we're gone
- After arriving in the US we ended up traveling every couple weeks and living out of our suitcases
- We bought a house in Indiana to serve as our home base while we are in the states.

Through all of the unknowns, it is comforting to know that God is in control and is faithful. As Christmas draws near, I (Sarah) think of all the people that don't know or accept God's amazing gift of His only Son and how I tend to take it for granted. Too often I get caught up in my own worries and comfort and don't ask how I can be used by God, yet He still loves me. I want our friends in Guinea-Bissau to know His love. Please pray that we would be faithful to God's calling and that God would touch the hearts of our people in Guinea-Bissau.
